

10 Point Plan – Surviving Lockdown

Point 4: Reaching out and listening to something new

If you listen, you may learn something new. Too many people love the sound of their own voices, but they simply don't realise how detrimental this is to their own well-being. Why not try and learn something new every day or hear something different rather than the song you have been playing on repeat all week. Open your mind to the exciting world of experiencing something new. You can try this experience at home, in the office, in your hotel room, when you are feeling a little stressed and only needs to take a few minutes. Don't forget to write down how you were feeling before you started this exercise, and then how you were feeling at the end of the exercise. Listening to the same things and thoughts leads to monotony, so rather than seeking out something you already know, try reaching out and listening to something you don't. Have a look at over 300 YouTube tracks and suggestions listed below:
